

A CORNUCOPIA of Flowers for Your THANKSGIVING Bouquets

The wonderful thing about creating a Thanksgiving bouquet for your table is that at harvest time, almost anything warm goes. Invite the kids to walk through the yard or take a nature walk through your garden, craft store or florist shop to see what you can find: colorful leaves, sprigs from shrubs with orange berries like pyracantha, or clippings off a burning bush for accents with flowers you find at a florist or super-market. Be creative, think outside the florist's box: you can even accent a bouquet with cinnamon sticks!

Anything ORANGE

Asiatic lilies, gerbera daisies, peach roses, orange roses, dark orange alstroemeria

Anything GOLD or YELLOW

Yellow alstroemeria, sunflowers, daisies, gold cushion chrysanthemums, bronze disbud chrysanthemums, Solidago (Goldenrod)

Accents of BROWN

Cinnamon sticks, seeded eucalyptus, oak leaves, rust-colored daisy chrysanthemums, wheat stalks, beech leaves

Break the mold and accent with WHITE daisies, white cushion chrysanthemums, white Asiatic lilies and accent with cinnamon sticks, or fall leaves and berries in fall colors of your choice!

Accents of RED

Miniature red gerberas, roses, carnations, hypericum berries, a spray of red huckleberry from the yard

Accents of PURPLE

Purple statice, Matsumoto asters

And remember a little touch of GREEN makes your fall color materials POP (Sprigs of lemon leaf, variegated pittosporum, and bupleurum are nice. Or even just a snipping of boxwood from your yard!)
